

National Rates of Civic Engagement in 2019 and 2021

The Current Population Survey Civic Engagement and Volunteering (CEV) Supplement is the most robust longitudinal survey about volunteerism and other forms of civic engagement in the United States. Produced through a partnership between AmeriCorps and the U.S. Census Bureau, the CEV takes the pulse of our nation's civic health every two years. The CEV collects data on formal volunteering, informal helping, and other types of civic behaviors—such as donating to charity, participating in organizations, and voting in local elections—along with how individuals perceive the relationship between their work and civic activities.

See how the U.S. population engaged in civic life in 2019 and 2021.
